Sir,

I have the honor to forward herewith, a List of L. Casella's hydrometers and thermometers required for the use of this Department, and to request that the Superintendent of Government Stores may be instructed to obtain them from England along with the supply of Stationery. These instruments being very delicate, it is necessary that they should be dispatched by the manufacturer in insured parcels. Both the hydrometers and thermometers must be by L. Casella. No table books are required with them, as a sufficient supply of them exists at the Stores of this Office.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

With reference to Government Proceedings No. 15828-30 / R 1935 dated 20th March 1893 directing me to carry out the execution of Excise Commissioner's Indent for Hydrometers and Thermometers, I beg to point out that it would be very unsafe to have these delicate instruments packed and forwarded in the cases of Stationery. These instruments could only be packed for export by the maker himself whose special knowledge and experience would enable him to adopt such measures as would ensure safe transit and who also undoubtedly would have experts thoroughly trained in the handling of instruments and conversant with all that was needed for the export trade. It would be very inadvisable to have the instruments handed over to the Stationery Agents and allow their Staff [illegible] men who cannot be conversant with the handling and packing of delicate instruments – and to place them side by side in [illegible] xes along with other heavy Stationery [illegible] ods. In some instances glass and po[illegible]ter inkbottles, candles and gumpots are br[illegible]ken when received here in the Station[illegible]ry supplies, though apparently packed care[illegible]lly, and if such articles as the above meet with accidents in the cases of Stationery [illegible] while en route delicate instruments like Thermometers and Hydrometers will [illegible] are badly.

2. I would suggest therefore that the [illegible] cise Commissioner should address the Maker, L. Casella, forwarding the Indent to him and ask that the same should be complied with direct; all the packing &c. would then be carried out under the Supervision of the manufacturer and a specially trained Staff who, for their own credit and for the reputation of the Firm would adopt every precaution to ensure the Safe arrival of the instruments.

3. Further, I beg to add that if the Indent were to be sent through Messrs Spicer Brothers the London Agents for Stationery, this Firm would charge a Commission of about 10 per cent for undertaking the order which would increase the cost of the instruments considerably. On the whole therefore it would be prudent and economical for the Indent to be sent direct by the Excise Commissioner to the Manufacturers in London.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient Servant
